Mayor's Message

BY MAYOR DARRELL H. SMITH

For the second year in a row, CNBC has ranked Utah the No. 3 Top State for Business, recognizing Utah's economy, high quality of life and business friendly environment. This ranking highlights our efforts at Draper City to create an environment to attract top businesses to our community. Draper City prides itself with its sense of community, quality of life, variety of businesses and its vibrant and well-educated workforce. This is a great place to do business.

Draper City is located in the perfect place to do business, situated half way between downtown Salt Lake City and downtown Provo. This ideal location draws from the largest population base in the entire state.

Draper City has undergone a surge of residential and commercial development over the last decade, ensuring a high quality of life for future generations. Community and economic development is a high priority for our city. Our goal is to create an atmosphere that is very inviting to new development, while still maintaining a high standard of quality.

There are many Community Development activities happening in Draper, such as:

- 1) Utah Transit Authority commuter rail stop near the I-15 Corridor. This transit stop will include residential and commercial development. UTA's Frontrunner commuter rail currently connects Ogden to Salt Lake City, with plans to expand to Provo and Logan.
- 2) Town Center of Draper. Our Planning Department is working on a master plan, designed around a Utah Transit Authority light rail stop, connecting Draper to downtown Salt Lake City, the Salt Lake International Airport and the University of Utah, scheduled for completion by 2011. The Town Center will include residential, commercial and Draper City offices, including a new Justice Center and Senior Citizen Center.
- 3) The IKEA Draper store opened for business in the spring of 2007 and in 2008 other furniture businesses have followed, with the addition of Furniture Row.
- 4) The Draper Peaks retail center at 12300 South and I-15 has enjoyed great success and expanded in 2008.
- 5) Other new business developments include: Karl Malone Toyota, and The Pointe Class "A" retail and commercial space.

We hope that you will give us an opportunity to help you bring in a business or expand your business in Draper. For more information, contact our Economic Development Department at 576-6523.

Respectfully yours,
 Mayor Darrell H. Smith

The perfect place to raise a business

BY MARK PITTMAN

Draper City is nestled halfway between Salt Lake and Utah Counties making it the perfect place to raise a family or raise a business. Its geographic location places it as the bull's-eye for future business development. One such business prepared for the future, Karl Malone Toyota, was right on target when it chose Draper as its location to break ground and build.

Being in business doesn't automatically bring with it community involvement or participation. A store just doesn't flip the switch on the neon 'OPEN' sign out front and expect customers to fill the aisles. Company owners need to understand their neighbors, their fellow business owners, and how their product and services fill a need in the community. The city of Draper and Karl Malone Toyota understand their residents and what it means to open up shop in Draper.

Andy Madsen, GM of Karl Malone Toyota, talked about why Draper was chosen as the host city for the dealership, "Draper is a growing area. We're excited about being right here in Draper because we think we're going to appeal to both the west side and the east side," said Madsen. "One of the things that made it all possible for us is through the city - Draper City did a great job," he added.

Karl Malone ran the hardwood in the NBA for 19 seasons and although you probably never met the man in person, you knew what services he would deliver on game day. Just hearing his moniker, "The Mailman," meant he would deliver as advertised.

His role as "The Mailman" has changed since his retirement from the NBA. "Family is my focus these days," Malone said. "I figure I spent enough time away from my family during my playing days and now I can try to make it up to them."

Now that he's spending more time with family, he's left the city of Draper with his namesake in large letters on the outside of the dealership. His name means you'll receive Karl Malone service here, not watered-down, big-city service. He won't be the salesman taking you for a test drive. He won't be the man behind the parts counter. But, his name will show in the customer service you'll receive.

Most new businesses spend years building up their reputation to a level of community trust. With the names 'Karl Malone' and 'Draper City' attached to the dealership, a sense of public trust started from day one. Malone's work ethic and Draper's country charm with a twist of suit-and-tie business ethics has combined to build a partnership with a community building block foundation.

Draper has a population of 33,000 residents which is comprised of a highly-educated workforce. The residents of Draper do have time for relaxing activities including hiking inner-city trails, paragliding, and sliding down the slopes of the eight different ski resorts within a 30-60 minute drive. Many residents of Draper like their community-orientated environment and will shop where they live and play. In fact, most businesses in Draper are no more than 10 minutes from driveway to shopping.

Mayor Darrell Smith understands the changes Draper is going through since he was raised in the area. "I grew up on a farm and our farm happened to be exactly 10 blocks straight south of here," Mayor Smith said of his childhood days. "So this area - all of this area is near and dear to my heart." That area includes the real estate that now hosts Karl Malone Toyota.

Careful and calculated planning of land development to residential and land development to business is crucial in the success of an area for overall economic development. Too much residential development causes money to leave the area and too much business development causes the community to live elsewhere. "There's no question on my mind what's going to happen to this area," Mayor Smith said. "This is one of those next areas in Draper to blossom as far as our economic development," he added.

Mayor Smith clearly understands how patronizing businesses in your local community helps those who live right down the street and across town. He considered giving Karl Malone a key to the city but another thought crossed his mind. Explaining how he and his wife went to the local Brownies key shop in Draper to get a spare key, Mayor Smith compared a key to the city to getting a key made by your local locksmith. "Draper is a great community to support one another from its residents to its businesses. We support our local locksmith and we support our local Karl Malone Toyota dealership."

Great cities like Draper have tight partnerships between its citizens and its businesses. You have to have the right balance of neighborhoods, parks, schools, and businesses. In a town where a wave 'hello' to a stranger as you pass each other on the sidewalk is still commonplace, businesses need to compliment that feeling while providing jobs and resources. "We're thrilled to have you be a partner in our community," Mayor Smith said proudly. "If there is anything we can do to further this relationship to help the community, let me know."

Karl Malone has so much faith in the residents of Draper, that he's left his most-prized personal possessions in their care. On the second floor of his state-of-the-art dealership is a museum of very rare Karl Malone memorabilia. "Some of these items were kept in a safe," Malone said of the value. Most of the items on display took years to collect and span from his high school days to his pro career in the NBA.

Highlights of the display are two Olympic gold medals, a pair of NBA MVP awards, and 12 sets of game-worn shoes and jersey from the original 1992 Olympic Dream Team. Malone has opened his memorabilia collection for anyone to see as long as the dealership is open (admission is free). "All this stuff was kind of scattered all over the place," Malone said of organizing the items. "People are welcome to come see everything even if they aren't looking at getting a new car."

It is like Malone is inviting you to take a look at the scrapbook of his life. He's a part of the Draper community now. He's part businessman and he's part citizen. That's what Draper is all about.

"Draper City is a community that preserves its unique identity and heritage, and provides protection and services for its citizens."

Creekside Animal Hospital is going for the dogs (or any other pet you own)

BY SALLIE MATTISON YOUNG

Veterinarian Dr. Martin Orr is a dog's best friend. And a cat's. And a rabbit's and scorpion's and ostrich's and lion's. Basically, if it's a critter, Dr. Orr and the Creekside Animal Hospital in Draper will look out for it.

"We take care of all kinds of animals here, from household pets to the more exotic," Orr says. Creekside uses the latest technology such as laser surgery and state-of-the-art boarding facilities to care for its clientele.

"Laser surgery allows incision cutting of skin to be precise and quick and diminishes bleeding," Orr says. "Healing is a lot faster." For example, Creekside uses laser technology to declaw cats with little to no bleeding. "Healing is immediate," he says.

The clinic focuses on preventive medicine and wellness visits. Veterinary care includes routine examinations, vaccinations, spaying, neutering, behavior and diet counseling, geriatric health and dentistry — an often overlooked part of an animal's treatment plan. "We're offering half-price dentals right now because dental care is so important," Orr says.

The hospital facility offers emergency care, including diagnostic testing, radiology, ultrasonography and electrocardiography. It also provides more extensive medical services for pets suffering from diseases such as cancer or organ failure. "We're competitive to other hospitals in the area" in terms of accessibility and price, Orr says.

In the boarding facilities, "animals are rotated through the state-of-the-art facilities inside and out," Orr says. One feature includes a recording of laughing dog sounds to help create a sort of doggie nirvana, "which has been proven to help soothe and calm dogs," he adds.

Exotic pet care is a specialty, one that is needed in the Salt Lake area. "We train owners how to care for their exotic animals," Orr says. "Often when they get their pets from the pet store, the salespeople are trained only for short-term care and they don't provide much more information than that."

Orr attended the University of Utah, then Utah State University, before heading to the veterinary school at Oregon State University. He's been a practicing vet for 20 years and moved to Creekside in 2005.

So why should you bring your beloved pet to Creekside for care?

"Our facility is very clean and smells nice (for both humans and animals), and the staff really cares about the animals," Orr says. "We try to help owners do what needs to be done for the animals within their financial means."

Creekside Animal Hospital is at 12720 Pony Express Road in Draper. The hospital is open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. To schedule an appointment or tour of the facility, call 801-565-1263.

1. Connect the scanning device to a computer at your place of business
2. Scan your checks and submit them to the Bank via a secure Web site
3. Bank of American Fork processes the checks, adding the funds to your account
4. Each month, you are billed for transactions and access fees

The process is easy and saves you time and money—just what a small business needs. Bank of

Local doctor offers great care, great customer service

BY SALLIE MATTISON YOUNG

Whether you're a woman having your first baby or your last — or you just want to stay healthy until you're ready to conceive — you'll want to find the best medical care you can get.

That's why Draper's Dr. Carrie Sloan is the right OB/GYN for you.

"We work to provide our patients with the same concerned, respectful, and high-quality care we would expect for our own families," Dr. Sloan says. She knows exactly what this entails, as she is herself a wife and mother of two.

"I see low-risk and high-risk pregnancy patients," says Dr. Sloan. She attended medical school at New York Medical College and did her residency at the University of Rochester, NY. She graduated 8 years ago and has delivered hundreds of babies. "I care for all age groups for annual women's health exams and gynecological checkups, as well as other problems."

In fact, although she's not an infertility specialist, Dr. Sloan can help those women who have difficulty getting pregnant in some of the milder cases.

Immaculate Concept

When it comes to high-quality health care, Dr. Sloan says good customer service is very important. "I recognize that just like I have a schedule and a life to keep, I know that my patients also have their own schedules to keep and errands to run," she says. "The patient is the most important person in our office."

To that end, Dr. Sloan and her staff work hard to be "user-friendly" and run on time — even though sometimes babies don't always cooperate. When it comes to getting an appointment, "our routine annuals are booked out a ways in advance," she says, "but for urgent problems, we are good at getting people in."

No Reservations

Dr. Sloan's career path has led her to some interesting places. Before coming to Utah, she worked as an OB/GYN for an Indian Health Services hospital on the Navajo reservation near Gallup, New Mexico, for four years. "It was a wonderful experience," she says. "I loved taking care of them."

Perhaps her biggest challenges while there, she notes, were the cultural differences. "There were certain social taboos and sensitivities you had to be aware of," she says. "It certainly broadened my education."

While living there, she and her family visited Utah every year to ski. Also, as a child growing up in California, her family would visit her grandfather who lived in Utah.

Dr. Sloan decided to move to the Salt Lake area in 2004, where she joined a practice with two other board-certified physicians at St. Mark's in Millcreek — Drs. Vernon Yamashiro and Daren Watts. "We decided that I would expand to a Draper satellite office because it's such an area of growth," Dr. Sloan says. She delivers her patients' babies at St. Mark's.

Labor Pains

The opening of the Draper satellite office was planned in anticipation of the eventual opening of the Lone Peak facility of St. Mark's, a 60-bed full-service hospital that will offer a full array of acute care services to serve medical, obstetrical, surgical and pediatric patients. Services there will include an emergency room, a women's center with state-of-the-art birthing suites, orthopedics, cardiology, diagnostic imaging and an outpatient surgery center, according to the Lone Peak facility's website.

The hospital is expected to employ close to 500 people and have a medical staff of more than 200 physicians within the first few years of operation. The opening has been delayed indefinitely, but when it does open, Dr. Sloan plans to move into the new medical office building at 11800 South and State Street that will be part of the hospital campus.

To schedule an appointment or consultation with Dr. Sloan, call 801-523-3053. Her offices are at 12176 S. 1000 East, Suite H, and her hours are 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.
